Dear students of the State Ballet School Berlin and the School for Artistry, we have been holding face-to-face conversations or conversations on your cell phone for five weeks. Difficult and critical situations have been described to us, but we have also heard positive and appreciative opinions. We sometimes have learned about both from the same source.

Unfortunately, the currently limited contact rules do not allow for personal discussions in our two consulting rooms. We are very sorry about the situation!

However, we can promise that we will continue the discussions when the school reopens.

There is also the possibility of talking to us via the two known clearing house telephone numbers. Some of you have already done so in the past few days.

We hope and wish you all that you stay healthy in the next few days and weeks and can go back to school soon.

Kind regards,

Elke Nowotny and Arthur Kröhnert
